Community Resource Guide

2020

5th Edition

Revised

Excel By 5

Excel By 5 is a community-based certification designed to improve a child's overall well-being by age five. The first of its kind in the United States, this program emphasizes the important role our communities play in educating our children during their most formative years – birth to five years old.

Excel By 5 sets forth a variety of standards involving parent training, community participation, childcare and health to help communities focus on supporting the most critical needs of our young children and their families. The certification process also identifies available resources and existing best practices to help ensure that all the community's children will be "Healthy, Ready to Learn" when they start school at age five.

Media Use Guidelines for Young Children

The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) encourages you to help your children develop healthy media use habits early on.

For children younger than 2:

Media use should be very limited and only when an adult is standing by to co-view, talk, and teach. For example, video-chatting with family along with parents.

For children 18 to 24 months, if you want to introduce digital media:

- Choose high-quality programming.
- Use media together with your child.
- Avoid solo media use.

For children 2 to 5 years of age:

- Limit screen use to no more than 1 hour per day.
- Find other activities for your children to do that are healthy for their bodies and minds.
- Choose media that is interactive, non-violent, educational, and prosocial.
- Co-view or co-play with your children.

What About Apps and Digital Books?

Most apps advertised as "educational" aren't proven to be effective and they don't encourage co-viewing or co-play that help young children learn. Also, most educational apps target rote skills, such as ABCs and shapes. These skills are only one part of school readiness. The skills young children need to learn for success in school (and life) such as impulse control, managing emotions, and creative, flexible thinking, are best learned through unstructured and social play with family and friends in the real world.

Digital books ("eBooks") that have lots of sound and visual effects can sometimes distract children, who then "miss the story" and don't learn as well as they would from a print book.
